Principal's Message

The achievements of another school year have been entered into the record. This record bears special significance to you because it establishes the fact that you have completed the requirements for your high school diploma.

You, as a member of the Class of 1948, have completed the training by taking courses of your own choosing that the school curriculum offered. Regardless of whether your studies included college preparatory, commercial or industrial training, they have all had as their basic aim the development of a competent citizen.

You are now ready to take your place in a community life outside of this school. It is the sincere hope of your teachers and myself that the training you have received under our surveillance will help you meet the problems of everyday living.

I wish you every success and hope that you will continue to take an active interest in the affairs of this - your school.

Harold G. Clark

Mr. John B. Chaffee

Mr. Chaffee, who has been with us for two years now, has done a great deal for the Sharon schools. We appreciate his whole-hearted interest in us all and are glad that he finds time in his more than full schedule to join us of the high school on occasion in our assemblies. We hope that he will want to remain with us for a long time.

Student Government

Since its reorganization two years ago, the Student Government has made many worthy contributions to school life. Their activities included the selling of tickets and candy at all home basketball games and the staging of a very successful drive for the Community Fund. During the drive, the members went on a "come and see" tour of Morgan Memorial, which they enjoyed very much. The group also attended a meeting in Attleboro of the Southeastern Branch of the Associated Bodies of the Councils of Massachusetts and the State meeting in New Bedford.

We wish to thank Miss Barbara Burns for her help and untiring efforts in making the Student Council so successful this year.

The Junior Class

The Junior Class is an active group in boosting our sports and supporting our school projects. Because of the size of their group, they have contributed many honor students, several outstanding athletes, and a fine showing of all-round good students. Successful dances have been a specialty of this class since their freshman year. The gym has always been beautifully decorated and functions well attended, having been undertaken with a spirit and zest which promises to be carried into a senior year full of triumphs.

The Sophomore Class

The Freshman Class

The Glee Club seeks to give students an intimate knowledge of choral work, the ability to work together as a group, and the pleasure of taking an active part in singing good music.

During the Christmas season it presented a large portion of three programs, one for the Parent-Teachers Association and two assembly programs for the student body of the Sharon Schools. A spring concert was presented in which various members of the student body appeared as soloists.

Varsity Basketball

The 1948 team was, in Coach Konsavage's own words, "The best team I have ever coached". The boys had a good season, losing only two of their games---both to Oliver Ames. The highlights were, of course, winning the South Shore Tournament in Brockton, and participating in the Eastern Massachusetts Tournament in Boston Garden where the boys triumphed easily over Weston in the first round. However, in the semi-final contest, fate lined them up against Oliver Ames again; and, unfortunately, history repeated itself.

Throughout the entire season, the boys exhibited fine sportsmanship along with excellent teamwork. Their return from Brockton with the trophy and their invitation to the Garden were just reward for this group of boys who have put their heart and soul into every game.

The Cheerleaders

We think our cheerleading team this year is just about the best. Under the supervision of Mrs. Keyes and the head cheerleader, Helen Ritter, the seven girls have kept our basketball spirit at a high peak, and have earned the praise given them by neighboring towns. Nobody could possibly be in doubt as to where they are from, with their bright gold shirts, and big maroon letters that, together, spell Sharon.

We are very sure that the reputation built this year will be ably carried on by the junior members of the group.

National Honor Society

Membership in the High School Honor Society is considered an honored attainment, and is the aspiration of every student. Its members, chosen for their leadership, service and character, are, when united and aware of the standards of the Society, active in undertakings beneficial to our school and representative of their purpose.

Their principal projects this year have been to sponsor, at Christmas, subscriptions to CARE and to increase the Student Loan Fund, a most worthy cause in our school. They should be justly proud of what they have accomplished with the very able assistance of their sponsor, Mr. Harold A. Clark.

Class History

A little Duckey Duddle
Went wading in a puddle
Went wading in a puddle quite small.....

Twelve years ago when we were six,
We set aside our baby tricks;
And proudly trotted forth to learn
From our new teachers strict and stern.

'Twas in grade one we learned to read;
Also the Golden Rule to heed.
For our amusement we made a train,
A project which was not in vain.

When we arrived as high as three,
We gave "Snow White" for all to see.
The seven dwarfs and the mean old witch
Made our eyes pop and our muscles twitch.

The next two years were quickly spent
At the Pleasant School we were content.
Our parents were guests at our flower show;
And we went to the Children's Museum, you know.

With pride and conceit to grade six we went
Which, to such small fry, was an important event.
On air-raid drills 'cross the building we filed;
Quite worried were we---others saw us and smiled.

We were quite grown-up---of childish tricks rid,
'Cause we now changed rooms as the oldsters did.
For a treat, we biked to Houghton's Pond,
Where of swimming and riding, we became quite fond.

The students governed the town for a day;
And all other thoughts were banished away.
We seventh graders took part in this work,
For Buz was Tree Warden; Franny, Town Clerk.

With cool clear nights to go star-gazing,
Our eighth grade year was quite amazing.
We'll never forget that memorable day
When Bev and Bess cut their pigtails away.

As freshmen we studied with grave intent
For toward a college career many were bent.
A new memory gem was learned each week
And our play "Treasure Island" was unique.

A slam-book made the rounds of the class;
And Dahl's cartoons were seen en masse.
The first freshman party in the gym was given;
Towards its success we all had striven.

At last we reached our soph'more year;
And started our projects---nary a fear.
Our Soph'more Hop went o'er with a bang;
And many, in Glee Club, for the first time, sang.

Under Parents' surveillance, we shuddered with fright
When they paid us a visit at school one night.
"Henry the Fifth" we all journeyed to see,
For which a car was hired, exclusively.

Our junior year, we, full of ambition,
Gave a Prom, as was the tradition.
Cocktails blossomed throughout the hall
But alas boys and girls, they were on the wall!

As mad chemists, we worked in the lab each week;
Here solutions to problems we did seek.
Our Sadie Hawkin's Dance was deemed a success;
While the cost of our rings left us in distress.

Our senior year was here at last
And the months flew by, full and fast.
With the "Skeleton Walks", a wonderful mystery,
And the South Shore Tourney where we made history.

A challenge was met by all who would dare
To present a program over the air.
And then we slaved for weary hours
On the best yearbook within our powers.

At last it was spring, the end was at hand.
We had done most of the things which we had planned.
We viewed our banquet with keen delight
And before we realized, 'twas graduation night.

We marched down the aisle with tears in our eyes,
With lumps in our throats, our heads in the skies.
We'd finally reached our ultimate goal
Into which we'd put our heart and soul.

.....As in these days of youth
When hopes and dreams were bright
We heard thy voice up raised
For truth and right,
Down all the years to be,
Thy beauteous name shall dwell
In hearts reserved to thee
Sharon, farewell!

Class Prophecy

One rainy afternoon, an aged man tottered through the crowd at the local radio station. Straining his trifocals, he located the ticket office, and purchased three tickets for the sensational, coast-to-coast, Whiz-Quiz Program. All the way home his mind was filled with thoughts of how his wife and beautiful daughter would receive the wonderful news that they were to attend such a renowned broadcast.

At last the breathlessly anticipated evening arrived. They were ushered into the studio; but,unfortunately,were shown to seats far in the rear of the hall. Peering over the sea of heads, they were just able to see the Master of Ceremonies dipping his hand into the glass bowl of ticket stubs. From these stubs, three were to be chosen; and the holders of their corresponding numbers were to compete for the cash prizes running up to $9,999.98 (bargain day).

Now the hand emerged from the bowl with the three lucky stubs. The first to be chosen was a fat pompous woman who waddled up to the stage and blushingly took her seat. Second was a young serviceman who strode to the platform beaming with his good fortune. Third, the M. C. announced the number, 86199.

86199?????? 8 6 1 9 9 !!!!! "Why, that's me!!" our hero exclaimed. Excitedly, he pushed to the aisle; and, reddening a bit, he padded up the soft carpet to the stage. Because of his excitement, he hardly realized that the other two contestants had failed and taken their seats, and that he was being led to the microphone. Eagerly he shook hands with the M. C. and hesitatingly chose a category in which he wished to be quizzed. Famous people was his choice. But, as his first question was announced, his confidence began to ebb.

"Who is the famous mechanical engineer who invented that extraordinary and completely mechanical farm, where the mechanical cows give two quarts of lubricating oil two times daily?"

"I believe that to be Dana Bartlett," said the contestant, adding, as his confidence began to return, "this may not be so difficult after all."

Again his heart leaped as the second question was fired at him. "Who, could you tell me, is the brilliant mathematician who assisted Mr. Bartlett in this revolutionary scheme?"

Our hero managed to stutter, "David Kestenberg", a promising young scientist with whom he had been acquainted many years ago.

"You're doing admirably, old fellow," said Happy Gleefle, the M. C. "Let's see if you can do as well on this one."

"Who was the first president of the United States who started the Bobby Pin Reform? And who was her Secretary of Foreign Affairs, likewise a member of the weaker sex, who was born into a great political family?"

From his mental filing cabinet, the little man selected two names, "Kay Bullard and Jean Dennett."

"You are absolutely correct," beamed Gleefle. "Who was the band of four pioneers who so completely mastered the technique of the typewriter that they were able to reach the astounding level of eighteen words per minute with only three errors?"

A Mortimer Snerdish sound was emitted by the contestant.

"You can't afford to fail now after such progress; and I can't give you a hint, that would be Keating----ah----cheating. Try not to be so thrifty with your answers---like a Scott. This question means the difference between your being richer or Poirier."

With these none too subtle hints, the final name to complete this quartet came to him, Gillespie; then Keating, Poirier, and Scott.

"Bully for you," exclaimed Happy. "Here's one for you to ponder over. What man, after years and years of diligent research, has perfected a cow with five spigots?"

"Oh, that is Paul Parrish, the man who was a plumber and got so sick of fixing faucets, that he decided to perfect one that wouldn't leak."

"Who is the producer of the cereal MFCHMPN, that doesn't sizzle, thud, or roar, it just lies in your bowl? Their slogan is, 'The Cereal of Champions'."

"Would that be Willard Goodwin???"

"Correct------Incidentally, he is known to his competitors as the 'Coy Boy'."

After a silent pause, Gleefle, slightly flustered, resumed the program. "Who was voted the Queen of Models in 1950---known popularly as the 'Glare'?"

"Who could it be but the famous cover girl, Beverly King."

"That's fine, Mr. Contestant. Now tell us all you know about Schuyler Lamb Clapp."

"Well, everybody knows that he is a clever writer and humorist. He also had a very good radio show until television came into popular use."

"Good for you; you get another head of lettuce for that one! Give us the name of that terrific interior decorator who's noted for her mad, mad designs, because she decorates by just being."

"Oh, that's Helen Ritter."

"Good gracious , man, can't you ever fail? O. K., here's a toughy. What two women about town have just invested their excess money amounting to $3,000,000 in the controlling stock of the Totem Pole Telephone Company?"

"Might I surmise them to be Booth and Bell? And speaking of combinations in the news, I call to mind that melodious twosome heard on "Screech Owl Hour", Maloney and Spear. Have you heard them? And then, there's always---"

"Now, now, old timer, let's stick to the personalities on hand---such as, how has Dorothy Parry made her mark?"

"I can answer that one easily!" he modestly murmured. "She was in politics and became Secretary of the Treasury; and, now in retirement, she heads the Parry-Mutual Bank."

"And here is another famous woman of our times, Who is Frances Field?"

"Well ah---er---that is----I think----Perhaps she is the famous violin player who initiated the use of chicken gut to replace catgut for violin strings."

"Now here is a sticker," gloated Gleefle. "What renowned band leader is now making the rounds of all the top nightclubs all over the nation and has introduced to his public that beautiful songstress, M. F. Champion?"

Triumphantly, he piped up with, "Ted Iddings and his rubber band." The crowd cheered forth, the M. C. fifth, and the sponsor sixth, because he was the first contestant to go so far in this quiz.

Gleefle, not quite so gleeful anymore, impatiently went on with the next question.

"Well, what is the answer to this one? Who broke the world record for the 100 meter dash in the Olympic Games of 1966?"

"That's an easy one, Mr. Gleefle; John Gomez is the only one who could ever do it."

Becoming rather quick tempered, the M.C. spat, "What has Ona Schensnol accomplished?"

"Oh, I'll bet that's the gal who's been doing all the wonderful illustrating for the Keith Martin Publishing Company."

"Mr. Contestant you've surprised all of us by doing so well, but now I'll be forced to make the questions more difficult. What is the connection between the names Schnurr, Plummer, and Giberson?"

"Let's see, now. Giberson owns the famous line of cross-country service stations; but the names Plummer and Schnurr don't seem to be too familiar. Wait a minute while I think."

"No, sorry. You missed the question and I'll have to ask you to sit down."

"Transportation on land and air, that's it. I knew I'd get it," gasped our hero breathlessly.

"So you did, heh, heh!" Gleefle sarcastically muttered. "Here's a question with three parts and you must get all three correct in order to continue. Do you recall the big write-up in the newspaper, about a year ago, concerning a certain startling hip operation?"

"Was the surgeon who performed it Marjorie Parker, that brilliant bone specialist?"

Gleefle, feeling rather glum, grudgingly nodded.

"Then Jane Davidson was the greatly publicized nurse who assisted Miss Parker in finding, after weeks of search, Annie Reynolds' dislocated hip, caused by a fall from the lofty height of one of her supercolossal potatoes when she was digging out one of its eyes with a steam shovel.

Happy, thoroughly perturbed, drank the remaining stubs in the bowl instead of his water and roared out the next question. "Who has been voted the ideal American housewife by a group of unbiased judges and was awarded a round-the-world trip?"

"I'll take a guess at Claire Hurley."

Gleefle, having long since finished his nails, took a savage bite from his index finger and viciously muttered, "This one will stop you. Who was the assistant to the assistant bookkeeper at the Flagpole Sitters Seat Cover Company in Flagstone, Oregon, at 13 Stratosphere Ave.?"

"You can't get away with that one! It's Betty Ann Shyne."

Wiping the froth from his mouth, Happy Gleefle forced a silly grin and faintly lisped, "Who are the famous owners of the Snake Eyes Casino, whose motto is 'We steal your money honestly'?"

"Not being a gambling man, I wouldn't know; but the answer is Janet Hadden and Joan Chamberlain."

Before the program could continue, the announcer, Jolly Jack, produced a new mike to replace the one Happy had thoroughly chewed.

"I defy you to get this one," he screamed with tears streaming down his face. "Who constructed, perfected, and put into operation the most efficient chemical research laboratory in the world today? And what brilliant scientist is going to conduct his greatly involved experiments on the theory of sblgnozkql?"

Without a moment's hesitation, the answer was out, "Millard Rogers built the laboratory and the chief chemist is Dick Stockwell."

"Here is our Jackpot question with which you can either double what you've earned or lose it." At these last words, a wicked gleam shone in the glassy eye of the M. C. "Would you like to try for it?"

"Well," stammered the little man, as "You'll be sorry" echoed through the audience.

In sheer defiance his thin shoulders stiffened and resolution hardened his brow.

"I'll do it," he shouted.

The eyeteeth of Happy Gleefle seemed to lengthen resembling those of a lynx with its prey.

"What institution of learning has fostered more geniuses, national heroes, statesmen, and inventors than any other school, university or college?"

Promptly the answer was flung back to the trembling M. C., and, over the roar of the crowd, the faint words were heard from the lips of the triumphant contestant, "Sharon High School".

With that, Happy Gleefle collapsed entirely, forcing the announcer to take over.

"How about giving us your name again," said the announcer, "for this is indeed a memorable occasion? We must also have your address so as to be able to send you your money, because you certainly never will be able to carry it."

"My name is Harold A. Clark, the retired principal of Sharon High School."

Class Will

We, the graduating class of 1948, being of sound mind and body, firm temperament and live spirits, realizing the fact that we are about to pass on to the great beyond, and also believing in the policy of handing down to posterity, our various and sundry individual attainments, do hereby make, declare, and publish, this, our last will and testament.

To whom it may concern, we do will and bequeath the following:

Dana Bartlett leaves his morning trips to Norwood to any junior boy who wants an excuse for being late.

Janet Bell leaves a set of keys to any junior night owl who might be in need of one.

Charlotte Booth leaves her cheerleading costume to Lois Parsons who could readily take Charli's place.

Kay Bullard leaves her headaches as president to whatever junior has the misfortune to be elected president next fall.

Mary Frances Champion leaves her "d-a-h-l-i-n-g" to Becky to carry on the family tradition.

Schuyler Clapp leaves for South Dakota where the climate is colder and the girls are warmer, (he hopes).

Jane Davidson leaves "Mac" and their early morning walks.

Jean Dennett leaves her calm composure to some of those silly freshman girls. Knit one, purl two, Carol Palmer, you might do.

Frances Field leaves her love for basketball to Eleanor Maria.

Theodore Giberson leaves his collection of mystery books to whatever junior sleuth thinks he can solve any of next year's crime waves.

Geraldine Gillespie leaves her old, worn out, shorthand notebooks to Nancy Rogers. We hope they will do as much for you, Nancy, as they did for Gerry.

John Gomez leaves the job of refereeing intramurals to Joe Shapiro.

Willard Goodwin leaves in the pursuit of happiness--and blondes!

Janet Hadden leaves David to Amber, forever.

Claire Hurley leaves her car to Barbara Singer to transport next year's sorority.

Frederick Iddings leaves his sophomore girls to Bill Jeffords; or do you prefer Southern bells, Bill?

Margaret Keating leaves her spot in the biology class to Tommy Markt. Out of the way, honey-wagon.

David Kestenberg leaves his compass and slide rule to Fay Bolan.

Beverly King leaves her ability to stick to one man to Patty Allen.

Therese Maloney leaves the Glee Club in the lurch, to join the Metropolitan Opera Company.

Keith Martin leaves his passion for redheads to Bill Leary. Do you prefer the musical or the athletic type, Bill?

Marjorie Parker leaves her giggle. What a laugh!

Paul Parrish leaves--and Miss Newton heaves a sigh of relief.

Dorothy Parry leaves her blonde hair to Beverly MacDonald. (Nuff said and no comment).

Henry Plummer leaves his Packard Twelve to Dick Awalt. Watch those curves, Dick!

Marilyn Poirier leaves the Chefenekemes the use of her house for their parties. It's sound proof, girls!

Annie Reynolds leaves her train ticket (since she isn't going back) to any junior who wants a trip to Maine.

Helen Ritter leaves her job at Rotary to any junior brain who isn't afraid of spilling ice cream a la mode in some Rotarian's lap.

Millard Rogers leaves the keys to the Visual Aids Room to Jimmy Hagan who, we understand, also likes to work in the dark room.

Ona Schensnol leaves to be married. Good luck, Ona.

Edward Schnurr leaves Connie's truck, wrapped around a tree, to Herbie Saunders so that he can transform it into a "New Look" creation.

Doris Scott leaves quietly with Fritz.

Betty Ann Shyne leaves her unexpected remarks in P.A.D. class to any junior who can do as well.

Betty Lou Spear leaves her drawings of monkeys to Stanley Parrish who has a hard time trying not to act like one.

Richard Stockwell leaves his distinction as the sole member of the French III class to Russell Pierce. Vous etes fous!

The senior girls leave to the junior girls the best sorority (in our estimation) that there ever was.

The sophomore girls are left to a manless future .

We leave to the freshmen three of the best years of their lives.

To Mr. Konsavage we leave four more Don Baileys and a ticket to the Tech Tourney Finals.

We leave Mr. Koskella some snow shovels for the future baseball teams.

For next year's "solid" class, we leave Miss Prescott a supply of fried clams.

To Mr. Conroy we leave a season pass to all next year's basketball games.

We leave Miss Chase a messenger to deliver her "Time" magazines.

To Miss Newton we leave a yearbook committee with fewer conflicting social obligations.

We leave Miss Savage with regret.

We leave Mr. Clark with appreciation for all that he has done to help us in the past and to prepare us for the future.

Nothing else in the world can bring the satisfaction that comes from attaining a goal toward which you have worked. But once attained, it loses its meaning unless new objectives are set up and a new climb begun.

Your graduation is a currently satisfying experience, but soon you'll become restless for new challenges ahead. Achievement is good only when it stimulates further initiative. This country was built on such a spirit as this and you are on the threshold of making your contribution.

The opportunity is here - choose your goal and work hard to attain it.
